HONOR the FUTURE
THE CAMPAIGN FOR THE UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA

Planned gifts combine philanthropic goals with smart financial strategies.

You may designate your planned gift to support any area of the Darden School.

Planned gifts can provide unrestricted support or be designated for a specific purpose — scholarships and professorships are areas well-suited for future support, as students and faculty will always be among the School's top priorities.

The chart to the right includes the most popular types of planned gifts. Each gift type has many variations to best meet your financial and philanthropic goals. The Darden School's Office of Advancement will work with you to properly document your wishes.

What to Give

The asset types below can be given outright to the Darden School, but there may be advantages to using them to fund a planned gift.

CASH

Cash, in the form of checks, wire transfers, and credit or debit card payments, is an easy way to fund a planned gift.

MARKETABLE SECURITIES

Marketable securities — securities readily sold on an exchange — make great funding assets for planned gifts. Securities can be transferred by estates as well as living individuals via electronic transfer. Securities can be used to make outright gifts, to fund gift annuities, or to fund a trust.

REAL ESTATE

There may be tax benefits to a planned gift of real estate. Real estate can be:

- Given through your will or living trust
- Used to fund a charitable remainder trust

You may also donate the remainder interest in your home and retain the right to live there.

LIFE INSURANCE

You can name the Darden School as a beneficiary of your life insurance policy, or you can give any permanent policy to Darden.

RETIREMENT ACCOUNT ASSETS

Retirement accounts can be some of the most heavily taxed assets. Making a charitable gift through your retirement account may be a tax-wise way to give.
